HIGHLIGHTS: Grants of $200,000 and above that foundations have made to the Community Foundation of Greater Flint and the Foundation for Flint, all in response to water recovery efforts.

Charles Stewart Mott Foundation

Grants from the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation totaled over $15 million and include a dollar-for-dollar match of up to $5 million on donations made to the Flint Kids Fund. From May through December 2016, donors were thrilled to know that their gifts were doubled, and the match was met! The Foundation support included an $11 million grant for the construction of Educare Flint, a new early childhood learning center for the children of Flint; and a $100,000 grant supporting independent water testing for the City of Flint.

The Kresge Foundation

In an effort to protect children from the effects of lead poisoning, The Kresge Foundation awarded a $2 million grant for the Health of Flint Children and Families Project, which included a $750,000 grant to the Flint Kids Fund. A bulk of the grant, $1.35 million, is being re-granted to local nonprofit organizations who are working to prevent and mitigate the effects of lead poisoning. The grant also funds a new position of Health Systems Navigator whose role is to build the Community Foundation's capacity to align its health grantmaking, assess efforts, and measure impact.

Michigan Health Endowment Fund

Grants totaling $1.7 million from the Michigan Health Endowment Fund included a $500,000 grant to the Flint Kids Fund; and $1.2 million to expand efforts to improve access to high-quality, affordable food for all residents, especially families with children exposed to lead. Funding allows the Community Foundation to make strategic financial investments to strengthen the local food system by expanding the Flint Fresh Mobile Market, piloting a culturally appropriate nutrition program known as Nutrition in Community, and providing capacity building to Edible Flint for urban gardening.

Carnegie Corporation of New York

A $1 million grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York supports the Flint Kids Fund. The grant funds early childhood education and literacy programs such as the University of Michigan-Flint's Pop-Up Pre-School, school-based literacy centers in Flint Community Schools' elementary classrooms; and the Flint & Genesee Literacy Network two-generation literacy program.

Tom and Holly Gores and FlintNow Foundation

WDIV-TV, the NBC affiliate in Detroit, organized the Flint Water Crisis: 4 Our Families Telethon on Tuesday, March 15, 2016. On air from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., localized versions of the Telethon aired across the state on NBC stations in Flint, Lansing, Grand Rapids, and Northern Michigan. Phone banks were located at WDIV-TV and Art Van Furniture in Flint. Detroit Pistons owner Tom Gores, through the FlintNow Foundation, pledged to match each gift. More than $1 million was donated during the Telethon to the Flint Kids Fund.

Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Foundation

A $1 million grant supports national evaluation and research at Educare Flint.

Ford Foundation

To build the City of Flint's public health capacity, the Ford Foundation's $600,000 grant supports the hiring of a Chief Public Health Officer for Flint.

Dr. Pamela Pugh's foremost goal is working with residents and other City partners to help restore trust in those charged with protecting the health and well-being of Flint residents.

W.K. Kellogg Foundation

A $500,000 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation supports the Flint Kids Fund ($210,000) and the Neighborhoods Small Grants Program ($290,000). The investment doubled the amount of small grants awarded in 2017 to Flint neighborhood groups involved in serving children and families impacted by lead exposure.

The Skillman Foundation

The Skillman Foundation made a generous two-year grant of $420,000. Grant funds provided $200,000 in support for the Flint Kids Fund. The remaining $220,000 is designated for a Chief Recovery Officer for the City of Flint. The Chief Recovery Officer is assisting community leaders and city leaders in maintaining regular dialogue with residents as the city recovers from the Flint water crisis.

Annenberg Foundation, Metabolic Studio

A $250,000 grant was made to the Flint Kids Fund.

Annie E. Casey Foundation
